

The Radio

Written and Composed By: Anthony Holloway

Verse

You weren't even packin', just headin' for the door
Said you couldn't hear "I'm sorry" anymore
That screen door hit the frame like a goodbye
And I watched your taillights fade out of my life

Pre-Chorus

I tried to sit with silence in this room
But the quiet's got a way of soundin' just like you

Chorus

I reached for the dial just to drown it out
But every station's playin' us right now
Yeah, every melody sounds the same
Every steel guitar is cryin' out your name
They don't even know you let me go
Somebody forgot to tell the radio

Verse

I grabbed my keys, couldn't sit there anymore
Let that screen door slam like you before
Fired up that Chevy, your song came on Turned that highway into one more song

Pre-Chorus

I thought a little asphalt might clear my head
But the speakers started singin' what you said

Chorus

I keep spinnin' that dial, tryin' to move on
But every station's playin' me wrong
Yeah, every lyric cuts me slow
Sayin' things I already know
They don't even know you let me go
Somebody forgot to tell the radio

Bridge

If I could drive far enough, I'd leave you behind
But you're ridin' shotgun in the back of my mind
Seems forever's all they ever play
Like the world don't know you didn't stay

Chorus

I can't turn it off, can't drown it out
Every station's playin' us right now
Yeah, every melody sounds the same
Guess some heartbreaks don't ever change
They don't even know you let me go
Somebody forgot to tell the radio

Outro

Yeah, somebody forgot to tell the radio
